15 July 2026 - Day 1136. Hi Mo

I've lived long enough to have learned that most people have little time to devote to other people's problems. We all have our own lives and difficulties. My family and I are realistic enough to understand that a situation like mine can only be solved by those in our government entrusted with such responsibility. It can't be a simple task, The ~~simplest~~ ^{easiest} thing, and most helpful thing, that you can do is to share this link. There's probably even a button somewhere on the page you're seeing now. If not, there should be. This can be your good deed for the day.

(#4) There are many things going on now to try and bring me, as well as the others locked away in Russia, home. Some we are aware of as they are known publically, others we can only guess at based on logic and events. It's not easy. What we know for certain is that even Russia knows full well that my conviction was entirely baseless, procedurally illegal, and violent. Anyone with access to even my prison records knows that I arrived at the pre-trial prison from the police station on 6.9.2023 bruised, beaten, and bloody. Did I kick myself in the chest while handcuffed? ~~THE ANSWER~~ Anyone who knows how to read can see the violations of police procedures for themselves committed by the arresting officers. Procedures designed specifically to prevent evidence planting. Even the judge knew, but was either unwilling or unable to follow his own laws, and had to change ~~materially~~ ^{or outright delete} numerous key pieces of testimony to defend a baseless verdict. We have the court audio to prove it. We don't need to guess, or ask for trust. // I love you, Travis
